The Ten Steps for Gender Mainstreaming include:

1. A Mainstreaming Approach to Stakeholders: Who are the Decision-Makers?

Teaching today's generation calls for a change in education approach from conventional to a more comprehensive, communicative and technological way. Conventional teaching methods make students uninterested in class, discouraged, bored, stop trying in accomplishing tasks given, and do poorly in tests (Felder & Silverman, 1988; Godleski, 1984; Oxford, 1990; Smith & Renzulli, 1984). In the language acquisition classroom, the focus is typically on form, practice and repetition of structure (Elley & Mangubhai, 1983).
