Structure your autobiography so that your life experiences become a story that others want to read. Just like the biography of a famous person, your autobiography should include things like the time and place of your birth, an overview of your personality, your likes and dislikes, and the special events that shaped your life. Your first step is to gather background detail. Some things to consider: What is interesting about the region where you were born? How does your family history relate to the history of that region? Did your family come to that region for a reason? It might be tempting to start your story with "I was born in Dayton, Ohio...", but that is not really where your s
