The evangelical Christian community often considers "Hebrew-Christian" groups to be a resource for information about Jews and Judaism. The Jewish community cannot afford to have pseudo-Jews posing as experts about Judaism and its traditions. Not only do groups like "Jews for Jesus" distort and denigrate Jewish beliefs and observances; they often promote anti-Semitic stereotypes and distribute tracts and books about proselytizing Jews. Another book is The Jew and the Christian Missionary: A Jewish Response to Missionary Christianity, by Gerald Sigal (KTAV Publishing). Sigal explores the biblical and theological responses required to deal with zealous evangelical Christians bent on confrontation. Cultic warning signs. It encourages Jewish people to contact JEWS FOR JUDAISM to access our vital counter-missionary resources. This incredible volunteer is going house to house, and leaving the brochure at every house in her neighbourhood that has a mezzuzah. Throughout the year, the "Jews for Jesus" missionary organization, and many other similar Hebrew-Christian missionary groups, actively target Jews across North America on street corners, at ball games, concerts, public events and door-to-door as well. These missionaries are well trained and can stymie many Jews with their well-rehearsed, pointed questions when they confront Jewish passers-by or visit them at their door. We are seeking to train volunteers to serve on our counter-missionary "Rapid Response Unit."
