Here's how the printing process goes: Raise the screen up off the paper and hold it in place with your belly (or rest it on your belt buckle). Apply a thick strip of ink to the base of the screen, under the artwork with a palette knife, roughly three fingers width either side of where the ink will end up. Another additional step was to fix a big sheet of acetate over the top of my printing paper, using a masking tape "hinge" at one end. I could then print one coat of black onto this transparent sheet to use as a super-accurate guide for the second layer. I could then place my first colour layer underneath, line it up with the print on the acetate, turn on the vacuum, remove the acetate and screen print my black layer as usual. Here's a time lapse of the second colour layer!
