

Literature Focus Unit: Dr. Seuss

Featured Selection: The Cat in the Hat

Summary: Two children are left alone at home on a cold, wet day. They have nothing to do until the Cat in the Hat walks in. He teaches them games and tricks that turn the house into a mess. The cat juggled household items while bouncing on a ball. His friends, Thing 1 and Thing 2, flew a kite the house, which made a bigger mess. The fish ordered the cat to leave, but he stayed and continued to cause trouble. Eventually, the children notice their mother walking up the sidewalk. The cat quickly and magically cleans up the house just in time. The mother enters and has no idea what she missed.

In 1984, Dr. Seuss won an award for his contribution to children's literature. In his years as a cartoonist and children's writer, Theodor Seuss Geisel created some of the world's most famous books and illustrations, including Green Eggs and Ham, The Cat in the Hat, and The Lorax. As lifehackers, we can learn a lot from the legendary Dr. Seuss. He was, after all, one of the pioneers of clever storytelling that didn't insult the intelligence of children. Clarity makes the message understandable. The message should be focused to one point and should not be catering to multiple things at once. The kinds of words you use and the type of sentence structure you form decides if the message is clear or not. Use words that are most familiar, instead of "Domicile" use "Home".
