But underlying the Reformation is something more than theology and translation choices: "that old love affair: a direct encounter with God's power, whether as a lived experience, a memory, or a hope." 3. Reformations: The Early Modern World, 1450-1560 by Carlos M. N. Eire (Yale University Press, 2016). Regarding the transformation of Christianity initiated by the Protestant Reformation and shifting further in the Enlightenment age, there are some interesting connections to be drawn here between Gregory's presentation of Luther and Charles Taylor's philosophical analysis in The Secular Age. 7. Wittenberg Meets the World: Reimagining the Reformation at the Margins by Alberto L. Garcia and John A. Nunes (Eerdmans, 2017).
