But everyone has to start somewhere, and with that in mind we've put together a guide to how to tackle the capital of Mexico, covering all cultural bases, in just five short days. DAY ONE. Mexico City is a bustling, enormous, modern city, one of the largest in the world. Triple-decker highways and gigantic tunnels bore through the mountainous terrain. Towering skyscrapers, enormous cathedrals and one of the world's largest squares sit impressively atop a gigantic drained lake. Everywhere there are signs of the Aztec empire which came before - in the street names, the festivals, the food, and the eyes and skin of the population. It is truly one of the most fascinating cities I've ever been to.
