When he accepted The Age Book of the Year Award in 1991 for his novel Double-Wolf, it was the first time that Brian Castro had been to Melbourne. Since then he has made his home in the Dandenongs, which is the setting for his ninth novel, The Garden Book. Other artists have retreated there, and Castro mentions several - the painter Tom Roberts, the writers Vance and Nettie Palmer. The novel ranges from the 1920s to the 1940s. For many gardeners the village show represents the pinnacle of their sowing and growing year. This book takes you behind the scenes of a very British institution, with an insight into the worlds of both contestants and judges.Â Phillips and Rix are arguably the best double act in garden reference books. Weâ€™ve picked out their classic guide to roses but youâ€™ll find equally impressive volumes on shrubs, perennials, bulbs, herbs and more â€“ although many are frustratingly out of print.
